Andrew:

I believe the “recent” source code production you are referring to is Micro Focus’ voluntary supplement to provide a couple of updates to the source code for “service packs” or more recent releases of source code for those products that already have had multiple versions of source code available on the source code review machine. That supplement was made available as of October 5, 2020, and we provided notice to WAPP’s prior counsel regarding the supplement and its nature at least by our October 7, 2020 meet-and-confer.

The supplemental source code files are in the same directory as all the other source code, “C:\SourceCode\” and comprise the following compressed archives as well as decompressions of those files in subfolders of the same or similar name.

Andrew:

Please be aware that the protective order in this case requires 5-days' notice for source code inspections. Nevertheless, those inspection dates are fine.

Subject: Wapp Tech v. Micro Focus

Counsel:

We write to schedule Wapp's source code consultant, Matt McKune, to review the source code hosted at your offices in Irvine. We'd like to arrange for two days of review on Friday Oct. 23 and Mon. Oct. 26. Please confirm that Mr. McKune can access the source code computer on these dates.

We understand that Micro Focus made a recent source code production in the last two weeks. Please let us know the names of the folders on the source code review computer where this production is located.

Regards,
Andrew
